

Articles for the section ‘Reviews of books, reports or webpages’*DESCRIPTION

The articles in this section are reviews of publications connected with political ecology issues. We welcome review texts that connect a critique of recently published books about specific cases (e.g. environmental conflicts) with up-to-date information from associations or social movements that are involved in the same cases, as well as reviews of international reports and webpages about current debates. In case of reviews on theoretical publications, we recommend to explain the benefits of these works concerning social and environmental movements, and to connect them with other works, case studies, etc.

INCLUSIVE LANGUAGE

Once English texts are translated into Spanish, we will try to ensure an inclusive language that reflects diversity. Therefore, we encourage authors to review their texts to ensure that language does not reproduce sexism. While writing, please try to indicate and visibilise when women, and /or other non-binary identities have a role in the environmental struggles or mobilisations you describe.

RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF AUTHORS

By sending the article the authors accept its possible publication in the semiannual journal Ecología Política. In case of publication, the article will be handed in to subscribers as a hard copy and/or in digital form according to their subscription. According to the journal's publication policies, the authors accept that their articles will be open access in the webpage of the journal, in Dialnet system or analogous portals after one year of their publication.

The authors are accountable to editors for the originality and authorship of their work and declare that all authors have approved the content of the submitted manuscript and that they have no conflict of interest with third persons. The journal ensures that the names of the authors appear in every platform of publication.
